

Electromania: Observations from Inside A Media-Rich Culture: Jack Kerouac to the Present

ELECTROMANIA is a project of new media ethnography. The culturally documentary mobile phone and digital SLR images are the motivator, and the experimental text based narratives that result examine the photographic truths hidden in our everyday global society employ the expressionistic influences of the very media through which they are captured to tell a story of the every day. The project was in full swing from July 2005 until the latest post here in November 2008. For more work, see Gregs main site www.otoole.info.
