

Darwin and Kardec: A Dialogue Made Possible

New and first on Amazon! About the book
Written in an accessible and engaging style, this well-argued book introduces for the first time, a comparative analysis of Darwinian and Kardecian views of life, evolution and the universe, enriched with inputs from Freud, Jung, Stephen Hawking, Dobzhansky and Carl Sagan, among others. Why not believe in God and also do science? Science does not prove that It exists, but it cannot prove that It does not exist either. If there is a God, one day we will certainly find It. If you have found It, try to see It in scientific discoveries. If It is a lie, your belief will dissipate in time; otherwise you will find a way to see It with science. While devoting myself to scientific research, analyzing the life of organisms in the field or in the lab, I watched the world and its beings with their adaptation patterns, and the strategies they developed in the pursuit of survival. I realized over time how simple the perennial universal laws are, and was thrilled by their evident perfection. Such sight induced me to let myself be transported beyond the material world, to the infinite... About the author Hebe Laghi de Souza is a Biologist Expert in Genetics with a PhD in Sciences at UNICAMP and a vast experience in the field. She is also an acclaimed Spiritist writer.
