

Living Waters: Poems About the Healing Love of God

As I prayed in church one Sunday morning, the band was singing, I stand with arms wide open! The picture came to my mind of myself on Redtop Mountain, Georgia, standing with arms held open and high. I was praying and worshiping the God of relationships and unconditional love. I prayed that the words of my poems would float like feathers and comfort the weak. I prayed that to others my words would have great power, through the power of God, to break the chains of fear, anxiety, addiction, slavery and depression. Charline Sutherland Payne
