This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1891 edition. Excerpt: ...Many a little makes a mickle. Must I live to see that? We live in hope. Live and learn. Live and let live. They live on bad terms. The livelong day. He only lives for the day. He lives from hand to mouth. He lives in dreamland. He lives under petticoat government. The longest liver. To get a living by... There is no living with him. I am loath to do it. I loathe it. Under lock and key. To take lodgings. In the long run. He knows the long and the short of it. I long to know. Its as broad as its long. To look with contempt upon one. You look well. You look at it in quite a different light. Look twice before you leap If you look closely into it. To look all around. Look first at home. Look before you leap. This lamp does not look well. To look to a thing. Thats his look-out. To keep a good look-out. To be on the look-out. To look out a word in the dictionary. He looked very much astonished. I have looked it over. A looker on. It looks very much like it. That looks pretty well. A loose fish. To lord it over. To lose ground.. To lose ones head. To lose sight of. To lose ones own estate. He seldom loses an opportunity. To be at a loss. He is completely at a loss. He is lost to all sense of shame. She has lost her presence of mind. It lost me my place. He lost considerably. I have lost my money by it. All is not lost that is delayed. It fell to my lot. To cast lots. To draw lots. For love or money. To be over head and ears in love. He is making love to her. Love me, love my dog. A lover of truth. I am a lover of music. To have a run of good luck. You are a lucky fellow. Three is a lucky number. In the lump. To be mad with joy. Mad as a March hare. Mad after... To drive mad. He was made to do it. He made a point of it. He made an appointment...
