

body scenes 2009-2014

The catalogue presents a selection of 51 paintings executed by Christophe Beraet between 2009 and 2014, including eleven portraits. This unique collection of this far unpublished works showcases in an exceptional and theatrical manner Christophes paintings, as they are bursting with humanity. As human beings, we are conditioned by culture and tradition and, in a way, the world is a theatre scene, says Christophe, and if we forget about it, we end up living in hypocrisy, in the society of spectacle deprived of any sense or meaning. From the first row of human existence, Christophe Beraet recounts the world in a singular, complex and colourful language. I need to break up the structure of things before I start painting, which I do in total isolation. Nothing must disturb me, nor disrupt my seclusion: I turn off the TV, the radio, the telephone and other communication media, I discard all external images and switch off the music. Each painting is a milestone set in the unknown. When I paint, I rid myself of any connection with the outside world, but I am part of Nature and what I think forms part of the world, and therefore what I paint becomes part of Nature and part of the world.
