

Jana Sterbak: Waiting for High Water (French Edition)

Publication documenting Sterbak's new investigation into our perception of and relationship to technology. First explored in From Here to There, (presented at the 2003 Venice Biennial) wherein she manipulated images produced with the assistance of a miniature camera worn by a Jack Russell terrier, this new project goes even further. In Waiting for High Water, Stanley the terrier now wears three miniature cameras. The resulting multi-screen projection invites the viewer on a hallucinatory journey through the streets of Venice at the peak of its acqua alta, or high tide. Philosopher and curator Hubert Damisch contributes an essay in English and French. Exquisitely produced with a translucent dustjacket and multiple fold outs.
